The fire department, which has no difficulty in extinguishing fires in the heavy masonry of Berlin buildings, was completely "stumped" by the American conflagration, and could only draw up a few hogsheads of water on wheels. Of course the fire did not penetrate the solid walls of genuine Berlin, and it was left to burn to the ground. The American way of building will probably not be tried again in a city unsupplied with water and with an American fire department. The hotel had only been open a week, the sum of they can avoid it. SOUTH BRANCH LETTER.

Our Grafton Correspondent on a Trip to that Valley—Interesting Observations by the way—Hems About Gov. Jacob—Hr. Faulk-ner, Mr. Maslin and Others.

GRAPTON, Nov. 6, 1875.

Garton, Nov. 6, 1875.

Chitars of the Intelligencer

I have just returned from a trip up the South Branch Valley. This is doubtless one of the most beautiful valleys in the world. It is about 50 miles in length, and from 2 to 5 miles in width. The soil is inexhaustible. I was shown helds that that had been cultivated for more than fifty successive years, still producing excellent crope. The scenery is unsurpassed by anything I ever beheld. And a more generous, hospitable and wholescaled people do not live, than are found here.

Going up the Valley from the B. & O. Railroad, the first place of any size is the old town of Romney, one of the oldest, quaintest, dullest and prestitest towns in the State. Here you find one of the most gentlemanly, accommodating and pleasant landlords in the world. If Keller can't make you feel happy you deserve to be miserable. The Institute for the Deaf and Dumb and Blind is located here. The building is very large and well adapted to the purpose. There are nearly me hundred unfortunate children here, being educated by the State. This scertainly is a noble charity, and reflects great credit upon the State. It wish every tax-payer in the State could visit this institution, and see how happy these unfortunate children are, and what a great work is being done for them. The building is heated by steam, and well supplied with pure running water, brought there from a spring about a mile distant.

Romney is the home of Gov. Jacob, his mother still lives here. The Governor was practing law here when he was elected to his present office.

THE TOWN OF MOOREFIELD,

THE TOWN OF MOOREFIELD.

Passing up the valley the next town is Moorefield. Here, too, is an excellent hotel—a better house but no better accommodations than at Romney, Moorefield is larger than Romney, and more aristrocratic. It is a beautiful place, and but for its inaccessibility would be a most desirable place for summer residence. The South Branch abounds in bass, and in the surrounding mountains may be found any quantity of game, which would make this a very desirable place for pleasure-seckers if there were any comfortable means of ingress and egress.

POLITICAL.

In ante bellum days the South Branch Valley was a stronghold of Whigism. Both the counties of Hardy and Hampshire, I believe, sent union delegates to the Richmond Convention of 1881. Thomas Maslin, Eq., of Moorefield, represented Hardy County. He was an uncompromising union man. He was called home on account of sickness in his faminate was the sent present when the you on. In ante bellum days the South Branch Valley was a stronghold of Whigism. Both the counties of Hardy and Hampshire, I believe, sent union delegates to the Richmond Convention of 1861. Thomas Masilin, Eaq., of Moorefield, represented Hardy County. He was an uncompromising union man. He was called home on account of sickness in his family, and was not present when the vote on the ordinance of Secession was taken. Had he been present he would have voted against it.

When the ordinance was submitted for stiffcation the proofs of the "Branch" sent. When the ordinance was submitted for

When the ordinance was submitted for ratification, the people of the "Branch" were induced to vote for it, under the impression that if Virginia were unanimous, the Federal Government would accede to any proposition from the Southern States, and the war thereby he averted By such means the people of the "Branch" were led step by step into the rebellion by the wiley politicians of the east. Hesitatingly and icarfully they turned their guns upon the old flag of their fathers, and entired in a war against a country they loved so well. But when war became inevitable, and the sample of the "Branch" with the straight and the sample of the "Branch" with the straight and the sample of the "Reach" when the politicians of the east. petitions natures. Truer, braver, and more daring soldiers never went upon the battle-field. Many sad hearts to-day are weeping in silence over the untimely death of loved ones. The angel of death passed through this lovely valley, and left a vacant chair in almost every house that the state of the same and the same hold. They staked all upon the issue and lost, but not lost until after one of the fiercest and bloodlest conflicts in history. SINCE THE WAR since the war is they have been yielding a reluctant support to the Democratic party. But when the bitter feelings engendered by the war shall have passed away, Hardy and Hampshire may be counted certain against the Democratic party—their ancient loss, as well as the cause of their recent woes.

Compound words whose primitives of more provided and the negroes up there believe he was an original Abolitionist; that he was the author of the resolutions introduced into the Virginia Legislature in 1831-2 looking to the gradual enancipation of slavery. This will be news for the old Virginia politicians. It is well known that Mr. Faulkner is not the author of theorem and a speech in favor of them, it is true, and it is also true that he has been apologizing for that speech all his life. Like lianquo's ghost, it has haunted him ever since. But having suffered so much on account of his connections with the "Italiard Preston Resolutions," it is but fair he should at length reap benefit from them. In his public speeches he would have the people believe that he was entitled to all the credit for Stonewall Jaekson's brilliant campaigns. By this means he secured the vote of many of the old soldiers. It would certainly have been quite amms ing to see Confederate soldiers voting for Faalkner because he had killed so many Abolitionists, and the negroes voting for Faalkner because he had killed so many Abolitionists, and the negroes voting for him at the same time because he is the father of all the young Abolitionists in IT HAS BEEN A MUSTERY

The Kairserhof was a magnificent hotel on the American plan, thrown up in a shammy way, and not after the solid Germany way of building. To be sure, there were water-tanks on the top and hose in the cellar, but, as

THE EX-ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

THE EX-ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

There are a number of excellent genstemen whom I met that I would like to speak of, but I have already continued this letter much beyond my purpose when I began to write. I may take occasion to speak of them in the future. It would probably be unpardonable to slight the ex-occidental Attorney-General, Columbat. I demeral feels that he is about the higgest man on the "Branch," but there is where we differ. If I were to apologize to the General for not referring to him, I should be tempted to do so in the same manner that

Many years ago when the science of threnology began to attract public at ention a lecturer of that sort turned up at Louisville and gave a series of "talks" to the people, examined their heads, made charts, etc. Marshall was present and enjoyed the exercises. After the lecture Tom and his comrades adjourned to the Galt House to post books and render judgement on the science. Tom said he could examine heads as well as anybody, and offered to take a number of them into the parlor adjoining and make the experiment. Many went, Tom seated them and went round from man to man, most of whom he knew, and made a wast amount of fun for the crowd. Among the persons present was Louisville chap of scant brains, distinguished for his pupt Louisville and gave a series of "talks of scant brains, distinguished for his pup-syism and forwardness, who had taken nevertheless, that he had left on the heads in the room; whereupon the Louis-ville chap arose with "Beg pardon, Mr. Marshall, I wish to say you have forgotten me, I have not been examined?" Tom was a little puzzled at first but relieved himself with, "You must excuse me, sir, I can't do it, I really can't. I am too nevertheless, that he had felt all the

I propose taking some microscopic views and the accidental general will be looked after.

It is almost certain, is any event, that our surplus products will be in large demand for foreign consumption, and it is gratifying to know that we are in a condition to meet, pretty fully, the draft that may be made upon us. The demand for hog products will also be large, and the prospect is that hogs will bear a high price this season, notwithstanding a full crop. The latter are now selling at $7,00 to 7,50 per hundred, live weight, with a demandfully equal to the receipts.
